There was a mistake vesterday in our Report of the Proceedings at the Election of Common Councilmen in Farringdon Without—the poll not baving been demanded by Messrs. Harper and Murrell, but by Messrs. Dawion and Murrell. Mr. Harper was included amongst those upon whom the election was declared by the Alderman to have fallen.

NETERING STATES

Have oft abroad their music flung,
And to the midnight breezes cold

Thy Abater's wayward norrows told;
Sweetly and the tones would cremble,
Yet darkling mists around thee felt.

Till Bacchas taught the strain to swell
With a wildly say expression,
Becathing warm the fond confession.
For crst himself the Cretap Fair,
Eatrangled in the silken suarre.

And deep in Naxos' shadowy grove
The conquer'd fod had learned to love—
And when he flung the warbling sound.
Of joy symphonious floating round,
I thought thy golden voice divine,
Far then were bathed in nectar'd wine—
My Chloe since would ask me why
The blissful tear impearl'd mine eye,
And why the Lyre, with myrele bound,
With Tuscan honours too was crown'd fFrom forth her eyes of chon sheen

'My all a planes flashing heen
I mark'd estric lightning fly,
Tivas level'd at my conscious breast,
For I'd forsworn the glooming sigh
That speaks the heart with grief oppress'd;
I knew the dear provoking smile,
For level wither's sportice wile—
But wake my Lyre!—thy vocal string
In soft whardson summuring
Must fail the sky insinuation
And plead thy Master's vindication.
No recreat he from his Chole's bower,
Tho' banish'd from his Chole is bower,
Tho' banish'd from his Chole is bower,
Tho' banish'd from his Chole is how.
The wand ring mourner ling'ring stray'd,
He cherial'd still the wild desire,
And sought the Muses kindred dire;
In vain the bourlog gale of sights,
In vain the bourlog gale of sights,
In vain the meldy would rive,
In vain the sour Cupid meatled there,
For like the snow, 'twas cold as fair;
Till Bacchus saw, and wav'd in aid,
His Thyru's o'er the frozen maid,
And with the deep' slacental bow,
Aroun'd the Peer's hughing soul;

Sits,

The exercious of the excellent Mr. Lancaster to promote the Education of the Poor of all religious persuasions, having excited a spirit of rivalry in some of and digital edicargy to form an association for the education of children exclusively in the principles and catchism of the established charch; it has been an object of the newly formed Society to raise large funds, and even before they have done any thing, to make application to those quarters which are only accustomed to contribute their aid as in commendation of services already performed.

Amongst other means of obtaining contributions, it has been recommended that sermons to be called the "Canterbary LeCuture," should be preached in every Protestant church and claspel throughout the kingdom, on the Sundays inumediately preceding the ensuing Christmas and Easter, when collections should be made in aid of the National Society.

Now, Mr. Editor, as Mr. Lancaster has conferred great benefits upon the exatible deburch, by the many schools he has formed under the direct inspection of the clergy, as well as in having meparad for their use, and edition of the church catchism, on the plan of his school lessons, I think that his services ought not altogether to be forgotten. His institution, from whence so much good has flowed to the United Empires, stands in need of support, and as many of the clergy and ministers of the Protestant churches and chapels, may be disposed to encourage the Education of the Proor on the Imited plan of Dr. Bell, I beg leave, through the medium of your Paper, to suggest the expediency of such clergymen, to address their congregations on behalf of the institution of a mai, who has enjoyed the countenance of our venerable and beloved Soverigio, and under whose patronage and sanction, he has provided the means of instruction to upwards of Ome Humited plan of Dr. Bell, I beg leave, through the medium of your Paper, to suggest the expediency of such clergymen, to address their congregations o

SIR.

Having lately seen the patterns of the equipments about to be used in the army. I found that the helmet, a portion of which is of brass, is intended for the heavy cavalry; it is certainly handsome, and if it had been entirely of metal, would not see drawn any comment from me towards its disparagement, for something in lieu of that miserable covering the cocked hat for the soldier on service, ought to have been long since adoption of the commentation of brass, is made of felt, a great portion of which is expected to the weather, and consequently subject to the absorption of the wet, a defect of no small importance, but my surprize became leasend, when I understood that the helmet in question, had been suggested by a hotory with the consequency, in which—

"A grave skilfed Mason gave in his spinion," That nothing but some would protect the dominion," A Carpenter said "The that was well spoke,

Yet twas better by far, to defend it with oak;"
A Curlers, still wher than both these together, last of "The young last "ry what you please, there is nothing like leither."

And if Mr. Hatter had been of this sero connection.

A Currier, you cannot revin only.

A Currier, still where than both these together.

And if Mr. Hatter had been of this sage council, he no doubt, would have expressed himself that there was nothing like felt, and therefore had he been certain, that he would have been supported in that opinion, would have confined this covering for the head, entirely to that article, without any regard to the consequences, arising either from the weather or the salve to the water.

quences, arising either from the weather or the same to the wearer. I also found that a foreign like-machine, called a hussar cap, is to be substituted in the light cavalry for the helnet which has been used for a number of years, and has been admired by the French and every other Earopean military power, as combining utility in every respect with ornament.

MILES.

The formidable rhinoceros at the Royal Menagerie, Exeter Change, is just returned from a tour in the country, and is so wonderfully improved in size and condition, that one would hardly believe it was the same animal; he now measures full ten feet in length, and about eleven in circumference; his weight must be immense, according to the soldity of his body and limbo. The proprietor declares it the greatest enterprise he ever encountered, in removing it from his habitation to his travelling house, and back again—and indeed it is not to be wondered at, when History informs us that such an animal his destroyed the ship in which it was being transported from Lishon to Rome, in the year 1513; which was the first rhinoceros ever seen in Europe.—He is now, however, safely secured in a new apartment built for the purpose during his absence from the metropolis.
