DEATH OF MRS. EDMONDS' RHINOCEROS.—On the arrival of Edmonds' (late Wombwell's) Menagerie at Ipswich on Thursday morning the fine rhinoceros was found dead in its caravan. This animal, which was an extremely fine one, was purchased by the late Mr. Edmonds for £2000, and was one of the greatest attractions of the collection. The East Anglian Daily Times says:—"We understand that the curator and assistants of the Natural History Department of the British Museum arrived at Ipswich early on Friday morning, at the request of Mrs. Edmonds, and at once proceeded to flay the rhinoceros which died on Thursday. They took back with them in the evening the skin and also the skeleton. The latter, we hear is to be placed in the Museum."
