

its own imitation, and this fact was overlooked by the Legislature during its late session.—Cin. Gaz.

On Tuesday, quite an event occurred at the Zoological Exhibition, Bowery. The Rhinoceros and Elephant having come in contact by some means, the latter swung up his immense trunk and struck the rhinoceros such a violent blow on the abdomen as to knock his breath entirely out of him. The animal thus assailed did not survive the blow but a few minutes. He was valued at $15,000.
