NATIVE STATES AND THE ANNEXATION POLICY.

To the Editor of the Bombay Gazette. Sir, - In your article of 1st February on Baroda, you say you cannot exactly agree with my sentiments... It is no means a bad thing for the Government...

After doing the tigers, we proceeded to do the rhinoceros, or unicorn of Scripture... His Highness possesses three of these amiable creatures...

The first is the great increase in the price of necessities, which the natives attribute to the design of Government... Doubtless, every intelligent man will see that the British have no interest in, or direct agency in, raising the rate of food...

On our way through the city, we came upon the parade ground of the native force, and saw a regiment in Khaki clothing performing brigade movements in conjunction with a four gun battery of field artillery...

The second grievance is what I may call preventive laws; i.e., the incessant interference with native customs and habits, for their own good perhaps, but which is more irksome to the people of India than real oppression...

Our ally seems to hallow in one point, and this is in the city and system. The centre of the road is divided from the sides by a low wall a foot high, along the top of which is a water gutter...

The third and last one is much the most important, and is the most formidable argument against annexation. The military classes of India are the Rajpoots, the Rajpoots, the Rajpoots of Guj, called Poorbees, the Mahomedan tribes, the Pathans, part of the Sikhs, Suddas, and Wutras; the Sikhs; the Marhattas; the Bhojas and other hill tribes; the Gorkhas...

INDIAN NEWS-LETTERS.

A VISIT TO THE GUICOWAR'S MENAGERIE.

[From Our Own Correspondent.] BARODA, 10th FEBRUARY.

There are some horrid beasts in Baroda, I mean I tigers, and we went to have a look at them a few days ago. Your readers are probably aware that His Highness the Guicowar has a speciality for exhibiting the combative propensities of a variety of kinds of animals...

NEAR LOODIANAH, 5th FEBRUARY.

Two long warlike men hundred miles of road between Lahore and Multan is now but seldom travelled; the traffic once so great, the long strings of camels, trains of bullock vans, and country carts; all these are seen no longer, and the road is falling into disrepair...
