

Female rhino and calf in Ngorongoro Crater.

John Goddard with a partially immobilized rhino. The dart is still in the rhino's hip.

Head-on identification photo of a female and nearly full-grown calf. (Note the difference in the snout wrinkles.)

A male and female engaging in courtship horn tussling before mating.

Their activity attracts two more rhinos – a female (left), accompanied by two tick birds, and her half-grown calf.

A rhino at full charge.
